COME & SEE US

Welcome to Logan County, Kentucky. Daniel Boone was quoted as saying that, “Heaven must be a Kentucky kind of place.” Most residents of Logan County would agree with that sentiment. It’s a great place to live and visit, and we are glad you are here or planning a trip. You will find many things to explore and do such as kayaking on the Red River, boating on Lake Malone, visiting our local winery or distillery, visiting historic homes and museums, or just enjoying the lovely scenery from the hills to the north to the vast farmland to the south.

Agriculture is a primary economic driver and basis of our rural way of life, but we are located conveniently an hour north of the metropolitan Nashville, Tenn. We are very proud of our own state of the art industrial facilities which, further support opportunities locally and contribute to the economy on a worldwide scale.

We hope to see you soon; so you can meet our residents and find out what makes Logan County, Ky. such a special place.

Logan County Tourist & Convention Commission has served Logan County for over 20 years. The commission is funded by transient room tax, which is collected from visitors renting rooms at all the hotels, motels, bed and breakfasts and cabins in Logan County. The tourism office is located on the first floor of the Historic Old Logan County Courthouse. Dee Dee Brown, Executive Director of Logan County Tourism, has served the commission for nine years. Logan County Tourism strives to promote and sponsor local events, attractions, accommodations, restaurants and other businesses as well. We have such a beautiful, wonderful county that is so rich in history and agriculture. The commission works to produce and distribute various Logan County maps, brochures and visitor information to other parts of the state. Tourism's mission is to bring visitors into our county and also provide locals with travel information from all around the state of Kentucky as well.

Historic Homes are a wonderful draw for Logan County as well. We are blessed with many historic sites which have been preserved through the years. The O'banon House, The Governor's Corner, The Bibb House, Flint Ridge/The McCuddy businesses exist in Logan County as well. There are countless family farms throughout the county. There are several businesses also that provide many agriculture-based items. Just to name a few are JD Country Milk, Poore's Nursery, Campbell's Choice Cuts, Carriage House Vineyards, Lost River Creamery, Country Breeze Market, The Corinth Market and Hampton Meats. These businesses along with many others draw visitors to Logan County for the items they provide.

There are also several historic attractions around Logan County that draw many visitors throughout the year. South Union Shaker Village is a wonderful museum that is a hidden jewel that lies near the border of Logan and Warren Counties. Auburn Museum is a walk-through indoor/outdoor museum that offers a wide array of wonderful items from the past to behold. Red River Meeting House is another one of a kind attraction in the middle of the country that draw countless visitors every year. Carriage House Vineyards brings in many visitors traveling on the wine trail of Kentucky. The SEEK Museum and statue of Alice Allison Dunnigan statue also draw many visitors. Visitors come from all around to Lake Malone for boating and fishing. Logan County is blessed to have all of these attractions in the area. If you haven't visited Logan County recently, we would love to help you plan your visit very soon. # WELCOME TO LOGAN COUNTY

Logan County

We are happy you chose to spend time with us. While in the area, make sure to visit our multicultural local restaurants available to you. Also, while with us, enjoy all the local activities available. Everything from the Concerts at Carrico park in Russellville, the Party on the Square in Auburn, the many car shows held across the county, and many other things available to you.

Logan County is a community built around our four main cities: Russellville, Auburn, Adairville and Lewisburg. But, Logan County is filled with small tight knitted communities around the county. Communities such as Olmstead, Dot, Chandlers, Spa, Schochoh, Bucksville, and many others.

We have a culture rich heritage that included the many things such as the robbery of the Southern Bank by the infamous Jesse James Gang. This robbery is reenacted each year at our Tobacco and Heritage Festival held in early October as our farmers are wrapping up their yearly harvest. We have the Logan County Fair, Adairville Strawberry Festival, and Auburn's Dog Days of Summer and Bluegrass Festival that are sure to bring many moments of family fun, along with just as many memories. We also have Lake Malone Park, a great place to spend time fishing, camping, watersports, hiking, and many other activities. The Historical Red River Meeting House and Cemetery are nestled among the trees in South Logan, the site of the Second Great Awakening held in 1800.

Logan County is an agriculture rich community as evidence by the continuous wide open farm land. Welcome to Logan County and we all hope you enjoy your time with us.

Russellville

Russellville is the county seat of Logan County.

The city of Russellville is committed to preserving its heritage while sustaining and enhancing a high quality of life for its citizens.

We are home to both local and international corporations and yet enjoy all the benefits and quality of life found in a hometown community.

Our city is known for its historic sites and homes, along with a thriving antique district.

Russellville has locally owned businesses for your shopping convenience and restaurants for your dining pleasure. We offer an attractive blend of small-town charm and city amenities.

Our downtown district and town square are filled with family charm and warmth. Check us out.

"The sun always shines bright on our old Kentucky homes." You are always welcome here.

Mark Stratton, Mayor, City of Russellville

Adairville

On behalf of the city of Adairville, it is my pleasure to welcome you to Adairville, Logan County and the great Commonwealth of Kentucky.

Adairville is a small town with a BIG heart. We sit between the north and south fork of the Red River, which made Adairville a thriving town in its early years. Plotted in 1818 and incorporated in 1833, the city boasts a rich heritage and promising future.

We have been home to many famous and infamous people. Andrew Jackson fought a duel here, Peter Cartwright, a circuit-riding preacher, who ran a political campaign for the Senate against Abraham Lincoln, grew up here, and Jesse James and his gang were frequent visitors to his aunt and uncle here.

Savage Cave, just east of Adairville, produced many artifacts during Carnegie Institute digs here in the late 60s and the Red River Meeting House was the site of the Great Revival of the 1800s.

Today, we have an award-winning K-8 school, and an art school opened and run by a resident artist, Charles Brindley.

Adairville is home to the Strawberry Festival, one of the longest continuously run festivals in the state of Kentucky. From some of the most beautiful farmland anywhere to the charming homes that people take much pride in, to a progressive city government, we are on the brink of big things coming to our small town. We offer that small town feel, along with being the southernmost city in the great county of Logan.

We hope you will visit often and long and if you are looking for a place to put down roots or start a business, you have just found the perfect location. We love Adairville and know you will too.

Donna Blake, Mayor, City of Adairville

Auburn

The growing and prospering City of Auburn, as the eastern gateway to Logan County, would like to take this opportunity to invite you come and see us! From beautiful countryside to modern conveniences, we have something for you!

Located on Hwy 68/80, we are within 12 miles of Interstate 65 in Bowling Green and Franklin and less than an hour from Nashville, TN. And with the RJ Corman's heavy rail that transverses our city, we are geographically the perfect spot to locate your business!

Our families also benefit from our K-8th grade Auburn School which ranks in the top one percent of national public schools. The City of Auburn encourages all potential residents to choose to locate here!

The Auburn City Park and Senior Center are a thriving source of pride for the citizens of the Auburn area.

Throughout the year, we host many events for our community and neighbors to enjoy; the Logan County Bluegrass Festival, the Logan County Antique Tractor Pull & Show, Auburn Lites "Free" Fourth of July Celebration including fireworks, Dog Days of Summer, Logan County Wine & Food Festival and our annual Auburn Christmas Parade. Folks of all ages can come to Auburn and find something they'll surely enjoy!

Our motto is "Small Enough to Know You, Large Enough to Serve You" and it continues to represent the city well. The citizens of Auburn, the greatest asset that we possess, welcome you!

Mike Hughes,

Lewisburg

Lewisburg is in the heart of Coon Range. The city of Lewisburg was founded in 1872 by brothers William and Samuel Henry when a new north-south railroad route was formed running from Owensboro, Ky. to Russellville, Ky.

It's forerunner city known as Henrysville was located about 1/2 mile south of what is now Lewisburg, which was formally incorporated in 1878. Located in northwest Logan County, Lewisburg is located on Highway 431 North just 12 miles south of Lake Malone State Park and three miles north of Logan Aluminum Inc., the world's largest aluminum rolling mill.

Although a small community, Lewisburg is home to several small businesses as well as a bank, doctor's office, dentist office, pallet mill and local elementary and middle school.

On Jan. 26, 1995, the Kentucky House of Representatives officially designated Lewisburg as the "Purple Martin Capital of Kentucky" and the first Purple Martin Festival was held on June 1, 1996.

We invite you to visit our quiet little town and experience the laid-back atmosphere and small-town life, and the hospitality of our wonderful community.

City of Lewisburg

COME VISIT OUR HISTORY

Logan County was formed in 1792, the year that Kentucky became a state.

It borders on Tennessee on the south and originally reached from the Green and Barren rivers on the east to the Mississippi and Ohio on the west.

Twenty-nine counties make up this area today, with Logan the eighth largest in square miles among the 120 in the state. Russellville is the county seat with Adairville, Auburn and Lewisburg other certified cities.

Logan's long and multifaceted history is still evident in the old buildings and beautiful homes that have been preserved. Much of Russellville is included on the National Register of Historic Places. Numerous Kentucky Roadside Historical Markers throughout the county tell of significant sites, events and notable persons.

Once a rugged frontier, Logan County was soon settled with families that cared about a better life. In 1800, the Second Great Awakening, referred to locally as the Great Revival, was centered at Red River Meeting House near Adairville in south Logan. The religious movement spread throughout the southeastern United States. A replica of the log church is always open and is continually visited by persons from near and far away.

Local historian

The impact of this religious event led the Society of Shakers to come here and form a settlement in 1807 at South Union, near Auburn. A museum housing furniture, tools and numerous artifacts is open to the public in original Shaker buildings.

Rich soil and suitable climate have traditionally made this an excellent agricultural region. Corn, hay, garden crops, tobacco and livestock are produced. It is one of few locations where double cropping of winter wheat followed by soybeans can be harvested from the same field in the same growing season.

In the twentieth century when tobacco was the main money crop, Russellville boasted the largest market for one-sucker dark tobacco in the world. Today, Robey Farms is the largest dairy operation in Kentucky. A drive through the country during the months of growing and harvest is an enjoyable experience.

When industry was composed of rope factories, blacksmithing and wagon works, Russellville was listed as the third most important industrial city in Kentucky. The Caldwell Saddle Factory, located on East 4th Street, is believed to be the oldest original factory building still standing in the state.

Logan Aluminum is now the largest employer among a number of modern industries in Logan County. Fifty percent of the aluminum can sheet for all cans made in the United States is produced at the plant in north Logan County.

The Russellville Independent and Logan County school systems owe their good status to a populace that has always valued education, from one-room schools to boarding schools to colleges that offered full degrees.

Reminders still with us are two Rosenwald schools built for African American students —Cedar Grove in the Olmstead community and Schochoh school, which has been relocated to the Logan County High School campus and is furnished with period desks and materials as a museum.

An historical marker at Bethel Shopping Center honors Bethel College for men at its site and a rock monument sits on a cornerstone of Logan College for women on East 7th Street. Both, established before the Civil War, were forced to close during the Great Depression years of the 1930s.

Russellville High School's auditorium is named for Thomas P. deGraffenried, a highly successful lawyer in New York who lived and went to school in Russellville. In 1961, he willed a million dollars to the City of Russellville "for the education of the people therein" in appreciation for the learning opportunities that had been available to him here in his hometown.

The Opera House, built on South Main Street near the Square in 1903, offered traveling shows and concerts as well as local plays and cultural events. Competing athletic teams were and still are plentiful.

Russellville and the other cities in the county each has its own park. Lake Malone State Park is in northern Logan County. The Public Library, 225 Armory Drive, provides a variety of programs, exhibits, materials and services. Logan County Archives, West 4th Street near the Historic Courthouse, houses local records, a destination for genealogists and researchers.

The Chamber of Commerce and the Tourism Commission have printed illustrated walking tour brochures that may be picked up at the Chamber office at 116 South Main Street in Russellville at any time. You are guided through business and residential streets where you see the homes of four Kentucky governors, six churches, the SEEK (Struggle for Emancipation and Equality in Kentucky) Museum, the bank building where the Jesse James gang made its first planned robbery in 1868, Civil War sites, modern shops and offices.

We are proud to welcome you to Logan County.

A mural of the Jesse James Gang robbery can be seen in the lobby of the Truist bank on the square in Russellville, Ky. Today's modern bank is a "descendant" of the old Southern Bank of Kentucky. The mural was painted by Burnard Wiley of Madison, Tenn.

Famous Bank Robbery

Built in 1810, the Southern Bank of Kentucky, located on S. Main Street, Russellville, Ky., was robbed by the Jesse James Gang on March 20, 1868 of $9,000 after they shot and slightly wounded bank president, Nimrod Long.

Jesse James was a bank and train robber in the American Old West, best known as the leading member of the James-Younger gang of outlaws.

There is much recorded about this robbery but one story of irony had its beginning back in the 1840s. Nimrod Long and fellow banker, George W. Norton, had become interested in helping to educate a young Logan County preacher. With their financial aid, they had sent this young man to the Baptist College in Georgetown. In 1868, at the close of the Civil War, the preacher's sons, Jesse and Frank James, had formed a guerrilla band and robbed the bank of their fathers benefactor, Nimrod Long.

Nimrod Long remained in the building until his death on Nov. 1, 1892. Mrs. Mary A. Long, his widow, deeded to the trustees of Bethel College the building and land which became the college library. Several of the Long heirs lived in the house during the time it was a library.

In 1906, the building became the residence of the family of Judge George Solomon Hardy serving as his office when he was United States Commissioner here.

In the 1940s, the banking room housed the Logan County Library which remained there for about 20 years. Several private owners have lived in the old bank throughout the years. The original safe is still intact.

Red River Meeting House

The Red River Meeting House, located at 3008 Schochoh Rd, Adairville, Ky., was the site of the first religious camp meeting in the United States. Held in June 1800, it marked the start of the Second Great Awakening, a major religious movement in the United States in the first part of the nineteenth century. The meeting was organized by the Presbyterian minister James McGready in Logan County, Ky., and several preachers took part.

What later became known as the Revival of 1800 began as a traditional Presbyterian sacrament service at the Red River Meeting House on the third Sunday of June. As the revival spread to the congregations of McGready's two other area congregations, several hundred people attended the meetings, held from Friday through Tuesday. McGready's other congregations were located at Muddy River and Gasper River. The meeting was a chance for the settlers to end their relative isolation for several days and to engage with new people.

When revival broke out, dozens of members in the congregations had various emotional experiences as the holy spirit moved in the services. When the news spread around the countryside, anticipation for what might happen at the next meeting stirred the curiosity of everyone, and interest soared.

There is a cemetery next to the Red River Meeting House. The tombstone of one man born in the Highlands of Scotland bears an inscription of the twenty-third psalm written in Gaelic. Generals, colonels, majors, and other soldiers who fought in our country's wars from the beginning are buried there. There is even the grave of one who fought in the battle of Waterloo.

Kentucky Governor John Breathitt

Gov. John Breathitt built and lived in a house located at 145 E. 5th (Bank) Street, Russellville, Ky. (Circa 1812). He lived here with his wife Caroline Matilda Whitaker of Logan County until her death, then with his second wife Susan Mildred Harris of Virginia.

Owned for many years by the Russellville Woman's Club, the building is managed by the Russellville Rotary Club for The Governor Breathitt House, Inc.

A brick building to the west, 119 E. 5th Street, served as the office of Gov. Breathitt, built in 1810 (first only one story).

Breathitt was born in Virginia in 1786 and moved with his father, William, and family to Russellville in 1800 or soon after. Here he learned and practiced surveying, taught school, and read/studied law with Judge Kaleb Wallace. Admitted to the bar in 1810, he developed a successful law practice and a taste for politics.

Breathitt was a Democrat, the only Democrat of Kentucky's first governors. He served in the Kentucky House of Representatives from 1811 to 1815 and was appointed lieutenant governor in 1828 by Republican governor Thomas Metcalfe. Next, he won the governor's race and took office in 1832, serving until his death. Illness with tuberculosis complicated his life and he died at the governor's mansion while still in office in 1834.

Breathitt loved Logan County and had made clear his desire to be buried on the family farm on the north side of Russellville, Ky. The land borders on the present-day bypass. The cemetery, in a clump of trees, is visible from the highway.

Breathitt County in Kentucky was named for Gov. John Breathitt.

Kentucky Governor James Turner Morehead

James Turner Morehead was born in 1797 and raised in Russellville, Ky. His former home resides at 438 S. Main Street, Russellville, Ky.

Armistead Morehead and his wife, Lucy Latham Morehead, moved to Russellville from Bullitt County soon after their son, James Turner Morehead was born. James grew up on S. Main Street in the atmosphere of community leadership that was exhibited by his father. He studied in the Russellville schools and attended Transylvania University in Lexington, Ky. from 1813 to 1815. He studied law locally in the offices of Judge H. P. Brodnax and John J. Crittenden.

James Turner Morehead moved to Bowling Green in 1818 and began the practice of law. He married Susan A. Roberts in 1823, and they had two children from 1828 to 1830. He represented Warren County in the Kentucky House of Representatives.

In 1832, James Turner Morehead ran as a National Republican for lieutenant governor and won. Democrat John Breathitt won the race for governor.

When Gov. Breathitt died while in office in 1834, James Turner Morehead was sworn in as governor, serving until 1836.

A noted accomplishment in Gov. James Turner Morehead's tenure was the passage of legislation with his support to map all of Kentucky's rivers and streams.

Gov. James Turner Morehead was the first native-born Kentuckian to hold the office. He did not seek a second term. Morehead died in 1854.

The city of Morehead in Rowan County, Ky. was named in his honor.

Kentucky Governor Charles Slaughter Morehead

Gov. Charles Slaughter Morehead was born in 1802. He lived at 156 S. Summer Street, Russellville, Ky. when he was attending Russellville Schools. He moved here from Nelson County, Ky. with his family when he was small. Charles Slaughter Morehead was a first cousin of Gov. James Turner Morehead, as their fathers were brothers.

Charles Slaughter Morehead was elected to the Kentucky House of Representatives in 1828 and was a state Attorney General from 1830 to 1835. He was again a state representative from 1838 to 1842 and 1844. Three times he was elected Speaker. In 1847, Charles Slaughter Morehead was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives. After that term, he returned to Kentucky and was elected governor serving from 1855 through 1859. During his administration, the comprehensive geological survey of Kentucky was completed, a state fair was chartered (1856) to encourage improvements in agriculture, and several progressive steps in education and transportation were noted.

During the Civil War, he first favored neutrality but later favored the South. Once he was arrested for disloyalty and was imprisoned for four months. He lived outside the county for the duration of the war.

Charles Slaughter Morehead died in Mississippi at his plantation in 1863.

Old Logan County Jail

The old Logan County Jail, 278 West 4th Street, Russellville, Ky, is on the same city block as the 1904 historic Logan County Courthouse. Cut stone was salvaged from the previous jail that stood two blocks east, and was used to construct the cell section circa 1880. Living quarters for the jailer and his family were added with a porch extending across the front.

A century later, the Logan County Genealogical Society was formed and a group of volunteers began to organize and index old court records. This important work was recognized by the county government, and the old jail was restored and designated as housing for the society and the preservation of significant archival materials. Researchers of genealogy and general history find these accessible resources invaluable.

In 1980, Logan County Judge-Executive Bob Brown ordered the preservation of the old jail when it was no longer to be used to house criminals. Steel shelving was added to all available floor space in the vault and some to the living areas of the jail building. Old records were preserved in the fireproof vault with humidity and temperature controls. Work areas are used in the front of the jail building which had been the housing for the jailers and their families.

Since the 1980s, the fiscal court has financed a new roof, major work on the deteriorating brickwork with new point and tuck work, and the electrical system has been updated. Windows have been restored by an authority on the restoration of old buildings and a new door was donated by the conservatory. Windows were financed through donations, both individuals, and groups.

You can visit the old jail archives for genealogical research.

Kentucky Governor John Jordan Crittenden

The home of Gov. John Jordan Crittenden is located at 113 W. 9th and S. Main Streets, Russellville, Ky. Crittenden moved to Russellville from Woodford County around 1807 and lived in this house. Here he studied law under Judge George M. Bibb and began his distinguished career and political service.

Gov. Crittenden is the son of Major John Crittenden, a Revolutionary War officer, and his wife, Judith Harris. His father had surveyed land in Kentucky with George Rogers Clark and settled there just after the end of the American Revolution.

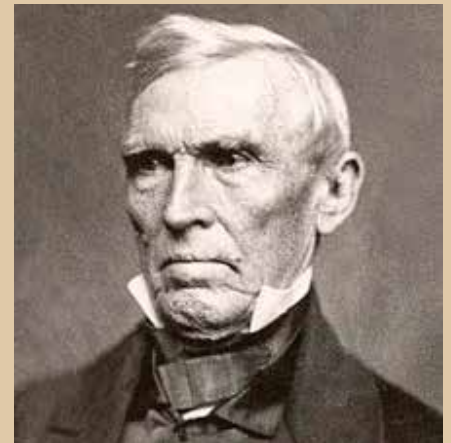

Gov. Crittenden was the best educated of the early Kentucky governors. He attended Washington College (later Washington and Lee) and graduated from William and Mary. After studying law with Judge George M. Bibb, he began a practice in Russellville, Ky.

In 1809, Gov. Crittenden was appointed attorney for the Illinois territory and aid de camp to Governor Ninian Edwards. During the war of 1812, he served as an aid to General Samuel Hopkins and Gov.

Isaac Shelby. In 1811, Crittenden was elected to the state House of Representatives for the first of six consecutive terms, serving as Speaker for three years. In 1817, The General Assembly elected him to a vacancy in the U.S. Senate where he promoted the interests of the underprivileged. In 1819, he moved to Frankfort, Ky. to enlarge his law practice. He won a special election to the state House in 1829 and served three terms. His law practice flourished, and he became famous for his defenses in murder trials and his oratory.

Gov. Crittenden became Kentucky Secretary of State in 1834. In 1835, he was elected to the U.S. Senate, reelected in 1840, but resigned to become President William H. Harrison's Attorney General. In 1848, he won the race for governor in Kentucky, serving until 1850 when he became Attorney General in President Millard Fillmore's cabinet. In 1854, he was elected to the U.S. Senate for a fourth time.

In 1860, Senator Crittenden introduced into the Senate a set of compromise proposals that he hoped would alleviate sectional conflict (in the United States). Referred to as the Crittenden Compromise, the proposals sought to relieve concerns over the slavery issue in the north and south and reflected the senator's desire to preserve the union. In a very close vote 25 to 23 the proposal was defeated by the Senate, ending any hope of settlement short of war.

Gov. Crittenden had two sons that fought in the Civil War. Thomas fought for the Union and George fought for the Confederacy. They met in the battle of Shiloh, but both lived to return home.

Gov. Crittenden died in Frankfort in 1863. Crittenden County, Ky. is named for Gov. Crittenden.

Reverend John Littlejohn

A large part of America's religious history was written in Logan County, Ky. One chapter of this history includes John Littlejohn, an outstanding pioneer Methodist preacher who lived his last 14 years in Logan County and is buried in the cemetery on the corner of 2nd and Caldwell Streets in Russellville, Ky.

Although Reverend Littlejohn traveled as a rugged circuit rider, he is spoken of as one of the most eloquent men in the American pulpit. Church historians write that few men have ranked with John Littlejohn.

Besides being a giant among preachers, he was a saddlemaker by trade and discharged various and important duties of civil nature. During the War of 1812, he was serving as sheriff and justice of Loudoun County, Va. When the British burned

Washington, the national archives were transported by wagons to Leesburg for safekeeping. President James Madison turned the keys and complete custody over to Reverend Littlejohn. For more than two weeks he was responsible for such items as the Declaration of Independence.

Born in England on Dec. 7, 1756, Reverend Littlejohn was educated in English public schools. He came to America in 1766 and lived at Port Tobacco, Maryland where he was apprenticed as a mechanic and also served as a clerk, or assistant shopkeeper. In 1773 he was converted and became a traveling minister. In 1818 Rev. Littlejohn left Virginia and came to Louisville, Ky. In 1821 he bought a farm at Red River in Logan County. He lived here until his death in 1836.

Lieutenant Presley N. O'Bannon House

Lt. Presley O'Bannon was a first lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps, famous for his exploits in the First Barbary War (1801-1805). In recognition of his bravery, he was presented a sword for his part in attempting to restore Prince Hamet Karamanli to his throne as the Bey of Tripoli. This sword became the model for the Mameluke Sword, adopted in 1825 for Marine Corps officers, which is part of the formal uniform today.

Lt. O'Bannon moved to Russellville, Ky. after he resigned from the Marine Corps on March 6, 1807. He built a home in 1812 at the corner of 9th and Main Streets. The home is now a museum opened by U.S. Marine Corps Major General Jerry Humble (Retired).

O'Bannon was born in Fauquier County, Va., to William O'Bannon, a captain of the Continental Army in the American Revolutionary War (1775-1783), and Anne Neville.

O'Bannon entered the Marine Corps on Jan. 18, 1801. As a first lieutenant assigned to USS Argus, he commanded a detachment of seven Marines and two Navy midshipmen in diplomatic Consul General William Eaton's (1764–1811) small army during the Tripoli campaign of the First Barbary War (1801–1805). In the combined operations with the U.S. Navy, he led the successful attack at the Battle of Derna, a coastal town in eastern modern Libya on April 27, 1805, giving the Marine's Hymn its line "to the shores of Tripoli." Lieutenant O'Bannon became the first man to raise a United States flag over foreign soil in time of war.

O'Bannon served in the Kentucky State Legislature in 1812, 1817, and 1820–21, and in the Kentucky State Senate from 1824 to 1826. He died in 1850.

Cedar Grove School

The Cedar Grove Rosenwald one-room schoolhouse on Watermelon Road, in Olmstead was built in 1929 and was used until 1949. It is still in the original location and is available for tours upon request.

Total cost for the original school was $2,100. It was a one teacher facility with 12-15 students on the average. It was heated with a wood stove.

It includes Bungalow/craftsman architecture. It was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 2002.

It is a one-story 30 feet (9.1 m) by 32 feet (9.8 m) balloon-framed building, funded by the Julius Rosenwald Fund. It served as a schoolhouse until it was acquired by the Cedar Grove Missionary Baptist Church.

Saddle Factory

When industry was composed of rope factories, blacksmithing and wagon works, Russellville was listed as the third most important industrial city in Kentucky. The Caldwell Saddle Factory, located on East 4th Street, is believed to be the oldest original factory building still standing in the state. In the attic of the building, slave writings can be seen on the ceiling.

Jackson-Dickinson Duel

Before Andrew Jackson became the 7th President of the United States in 1829, he killed Charles Dickinson in a duel near Adairville, Ky. on May 30, 1806.

According to Kentucky History, Dickinson, an attorney from Nashville, Tenn., and Andrew Jackson engaged in a duel on the Jeff Burr farm. The quarrel between the two men began as comments were made by Dickinson about Jackson's wife, Rachel. Part of the argument also related to Dickinson accusing Jackson of cheating on a horse bet. Rachel's first husband, Lewis Robards, petitioned for a divorce, accusing Rachel of desertion and living in sin with Jackson. Robards failed to finalize their divorce, but Rachel and Jackson, believing the divorce to be finalized, eloped in 1791. Rachel and Robards divorce was not finalized until September 1793, and Jackson and Rachel remarried in 1794.

After the insult to Rachel and a public statement in which Dickinson called Jackson a worthless scoundrel and coward, Jackson challenged Dickinson to a duel. On May 30, the two men met at Harrison's Mills. Dickinson's first bullet hit Jackson in the chest. Jackson's first shot misfired and, according to the code duello, he should not have been able to re-fire. Re-cocking his gun, Jackson fired and killed his opponent. Although Jackson's wound was not fatal, he suffered chronic pain from the wound for the remainder of his life.

Jackson was not prosecuted for murder. The duel had little effect on his successful presidential campaign in 1829. Dickinson is buried at Old City Cemetery in Nashville, Tenn.

AFRICAN AMERICAN HISTORY

ARCHIVE AND RESEARCH CENTER

The West Kentucky African-American Heritage Center includes a research facility, which is home to an extensive collection of local papers and documents which attracts researchers from around the US. It is within walking distance of four museum buildings in the Black Bottom District.

SEEK Museum

Russellville may be one of the best places in Kentucky to tell the stories of African-American heritage.

The SEEK Museum (which is an acronym for Struggles for Emancipation and Equality in Kentucky) has been developing historic sites and programming for over a decade now. However, this is only part of the story.

Logan County had the second-largest number of freed slaves in 1860 (behind only Jefferson County), and the lengthy list of emancipations are spread throughout the county record books.

The most notable emancipator was Revolutionary War Major Richard Bibb, whose home is a public museum in Russellville. Bibb's involvement in the Kentucky Colonization Society led him to send several of his freed slaves to Liberia in the 1830s and many others settled into areas known as Upper Bibbtown and Lower Bibbtown.

The Black Bottom National Register of Historic District has just been approved by the Federal government and boasts hundreds of historic buildings that were constructed after the Civil War. Included in the Black Bottom Historic District are six buildings that have been restored by his Historic Russellville, Inc. for use as the West Kentucky African-American Heritage Center.

The current exhibit features Alice Allison Dunnigan (a Civil Rights pioneer and the first black female reporter in the White House Foreign Press Corps.); the 1908 lynching of four innocent men from an oak tree; segregated schools; African-American soldiers in the Civil War; and former Russellville resident and blues singer, Mary Ann Fisher, Ray Charles' first female vocalist.

These exhibits are displayed in a group of historic homes including the oldest brick building (1810) still standing in Russellville, post-Civil War homes built by men who had fought for their freedom as Union soldiers, to a 1940 shotgun house.

In addition to the exhibits, ongoing research activities focused on the genealogy of African-Americans in Kentucky and an extensive collection of African-American artifacts are being cataloged and archived.

Cultural heritage programming included an outdoor blues concert honoring Mary Ann Fisher, along with other musical performances in the restored KP Hall, part of the "chitlin circuit" of the Jim Crow years. A summer youth program, Roots Revisited, focused on heritage education and character development.

Bibb House

In the 1820s it was the townhouse of Revolutionary War Major Richard Bibb who freed 29 of his slaves in 1829 and paid for their passage to Liberia and who then provided for the liberation of his remaining slaves by his will at his death in 1839.

The Palladian-style home is an excellent example of the fine, early architecture of Kentucky.

It demonstrates the lifestyle and customs of the landed gentry who migrated to Kentucky and will also tell the stories of the enslaved African-Americans, many of whom obtained their freedom at the site.

The most important focus of this museum is its developing educational programs for children throughout the region. Unlike many house museums that only showcase a “way of life,” a significant historical event took place on the Bibb House grounds.

Cooksey House

The Cooksey House was the home of Solomon Cooksey and his family for many years. Caroline Cooksey and her six children, Maranda Elizabeth, James, Eliza, Harriett, Mary Jane, and Solomon were set free in the will of Dorcas Cooksey on May 27, 1850. Solomon who was born in 1835 in Logan County, Kentucky would buy this land in the 1880s. And after his death, it was the home of his son Charles Cooksey who was a teacher in the colored schools of Logan County for over 40 years. The Cooksey family would own this land for 70 years.

Payne Dunnigan House

The Payne Dunnigan house was the home of the late Ruby Brown Payne. Her sister-in-law was the late Alice Allison Dunnigan, noted newspaper reporter, author, and Civil Rights leader. These unique houses in Russellville are called the Black Bottom.

The Black Bottom has been a neighborhood for over 150 years. In its heyday, it had five churches, four restaurants, three grocery stores, a funeral home, a doctor, and a dentist.

The West Kentucky African-American Museum and Research Center welcomes you to come take a walk in the history of African-Americans from Western Kentucky.

Kimbrough House

The Kimbrough House is the oldest brick house standing in Russellville. It was built between 1810 and 1815. It was the home of the Morton and Caldwell families of Logan County. In later years, it was the home of the Rev. Roy Hughes, an African-American preacher. He would bring the first African-American Boy Scout troop to Logan County. Rev. Hughes married over 50 people in this house between 1945 and 1968. The last owner of this house was Alex Kimbrough. In 1968, he was the first African-American to serve on a trial jury. After his death, the home was purchased by Historic Russellville, Inc.

Alice Allison Dunnigan

The 33rd annual Emancipation Celebration was extra special because the statue of Alice Allison Dunnigan was officially unveiled to the public. The statue was uncovered by members of the Dunnigan and Allison families as dozens in attendance watched. Prior to the unveiling ceremony, members of the Dunnigan's family and others spoke to the audience about her life and times.

The statue now stands on the grounds of SEEK Museum: Struggles for Emancipation and Equality in Kentucky on the corner of East 6th and South Morgan streets as part of a new park area dedicated to civil rights.

This 2019 festival theme was "Alice Is Coming Home" in honor of the statue celebration.

Dunnigan was born in Russellville in 1906, the daughter of a tenant farmer and a laundress. After graduating from 30 LOGAN COUNTY VISITOR GUIDE 2023-24 the segregated Knob City High School in Russellville, she completed a teacher's course at what is now known as Kentucky State University and began an 18-year career as a teacher in Logan and Todd counties. During World War II, Dunnigan moved to Washington, D.C., and began working for the Associated Negro Press. She became head of its Washington Bureau on Jan 1, 1947. In August of that year, after she had successfully lobbied for a change in the rules of the U.S. Senate to allow African American journalists to attend presidential press conferences, Dunnigan began her career reporting on all branches of the federal government.

In 1948 Dunnigan again made history by being the first African American woman to travel with and report on a Presidential tour when she went on the whistle-stop tour with President Truman. She personally paid the expenses for this trip after her boss told her "Women don't make trips like that." Her statue has been on its own whistle-stop tour, having been displayed at the Newseum in Washington, D.C., the University of Kentucky, the Truman Presidential Library and Museum, and Kentucky State University. The statue was created by Amanda Matthews and Brad Connell, owners of Prometheus Art of Lexington, Kentucky.

Dunnigan received more than 50 awards during her lifetime and has been inducted into the Kentucky Halls of Fame for Civil Rights, Journalism and Writers, and the Hall of Fame for the National Association of Black Journalists. She authored two books: "A Black Woman's Experience from the School House to the White House" and "The Fascinating Story of Black Kentuckians: Their Heritage and Traditions."

Russellville Walking Tour

Welcome to Russellville, KY, the county seat of Logan County. Known as “Rogues’ Harbor” and “Big Boiling Spring” to the early settlers, it has held the name of Russellville since 1798 in honor of Revolutionary War General William Russell.

The majority of the early settlers came from Virginia and North Carolina. As one of Kentucky’s oldest counties, Logan’s long and colorful history includes four Kentucky governors, famous and infamous heroes and a legacy of historic sites and events.

It is where the Second Great Awakening of 1800 began, where the Confederate Government of Kentucky was organized, where Andrew Jackson fought a duel and where the most southwestern Shaker community was established. Today, a balance of agriculture, industry and opportunities for education and recreation make it a desirable place to live.

Sources of additional information may be found in the Logan County Archives, the Public Library, and Logan County Tourism Center. We hope you enjoy your visit.

WALKING TOUR ROUTE

1. Public Square: Site of two courthouses from 1801-1904. An earlier courthouse was a cedar log building in east Russellville where Andrew Jackson appeared in 1794. The Square today contains several historical markers, a Confederate memorial, a cast iron fountain and military memorials including a cannon.

2. The Harrison-Hite Building: Ca. 1887. Carter Harrison (who built a number of the downtown buildings) and his son operated a casket factory, a grocery and a furniture store in this building. In the mid 1920s, W.T. Hite purchased the building and converted it to Russellville’s first gasoline station. It now houses the Logan County Chamber of Commerce and the office of Logan Economic Alliance for Development (LEAD).

3. Russellville City Hall: Ca. 1887. These buildings have been extensively remodeled and have housed various business including a dry cleaning establishment.

4. The News Democrat & Leader Building : Ca. 1873. The News-

Democrat & Leader is successor to The Mirror, western Kentucky’s oldest newspaper, established in 1806. The building was formerly home to the newspaper as well as a hardware store that had several owners.

5. Convention House of the Confederacy: Also known as the Clark Building, the center section of this building was constructed ca. 1820 by an Englishman named Forst. It was the site of the Confederate Convention held in November, 1861. Delegates from forty-three Kentucky counties met to form a provisional government for the Confederate State of Kentucky. The building now houses the law offices of the great-grandson of the “keeper of the door” during that convention.

6. Logan County Courthouse: Ca. 1904. This is Logan County’s fourth courthouse. On top is a reproduction of the first weathervane originally on the courthouse located in the Public Square. The original fish has three bullet holes, allegedly shot by either a member of the James Gang or a drunken Union soldier during the Civil War. Many of the offices moved one block west upon the completion of the Logan County Justice Center in 2010.

7. The Old Jail: Ca. 1869. Notable for the cut stone cell block salvaged from the previous jail at Fourth and Summer, the Old Jail houses county records and archives under the auspices of the Genealogical Society.

8. The Old Armory: Ca. 1930. Built by the Works Progress Administration (WPA), the Tom Rhea Armory was the home of Company M National Guard that was active during WWII. It now houses the city parks and recreation department.

9. Sacred Heart Catholic Church: Ca. 1963. Notable are the stained glass windows added in 1990 which are the work of Logan County industry Strickler Stained Glass. The original white frame church building, located immediately north of the present church, was built in 1872 with the assistance of I&N Railroad employees during nonworking hours.

10. The Presbyterian Church: Ca. 1878. This church was partially funded by the United States Government after an earlier building located on Blakey Street was destroyed by Union soldiers during the Civil War.

11. The Sandidge House: Ca. 1894. This was the home of Judge W.P. Sandidge. It is an outstanding example of Queen Anne architecture and at one time was a school of osteopathy.

12. deGraffenried Building: Constructed ca. 1967 for Logan County Public Library, it was financed with a combination of federal, state and local matching funds from the Thomas P. deGraffenried legacy to the citizens of Russellville. The library moved to new facilities on Armory Dr. in 2014 and the Senior Citizens Center and Community Action of Southern Ky. Inc are located here.

13. First Christian Church: Ca. 1871. This building was extensively remodeled in the early 1900s at which time the stained glass windows were added and the front was moved from east to north. This lot was the original location of the blacksmith shop of Major Richard Bibb.

14. The Morton-Loving House: Ca. 1810. This fine example of early architecture was the home of both Dr. H.T. Loving and William J. Morton. Morton was a close friend of Governor John Breathitt and conducted the governor’s funeral service in 1834.

15. Slaughter-deGraffenried House: Ca. 1820. Built by Thomas Slaughter, a son-in-law of Major Richard Bibb, this was the boyhood home of Thomas P. deGraffenried. Mr. deGraffenried was a prominent New York attorney who left Russellville a bequest of one million dollars for the “education of the citizens at large therein.” The small building behind the house was used as a private school from 1887 until 1908.

16. Bibb House: Ca. 1820. This home was built as a town house by Major Richard Bibb, a Revolutionary War officer, who freed 29 of his slaves in 1829 and paid for their passage to Liberia. Bibb also provided for the liberation of his remaining slaves in his will at his death in 1839. One of Major Bibb’s sons, John, developed Bibb lettuce. Another son, George, became Chief Justice of the Kentucky Supreme Court, a U.S. Senator and a member of President Tyler’s cabinet. Also known as “The Agnes Davis House,” it is currently operated by Historic Russellville.

17. Washington House: Ca. 1820. Construction of the original house was begun by John Whiting Washington, a third cousin of George Washington. The house was purchased in 1880 by Thomas Clark.

18. Caldwell-Orndorff House: Ca. 1820. This house, which was built by Christopher Orndorff, was later the home of General Samuel Caldwell, who was clerk of the first Logan County Court. General Caldwell died in 1835 and is buried in the backyard. This was the home of Tom Rhea when he ran for governor of Kentucky in 1935. The house was badly damaged by fire in 1988 and rebuilt.

19. Crittenden House: Ca. 1810. This unique frame and brick house was the home of John J. Crittenden. He served in the Kentucky House of Representatives, five terms in the U.S. Senate, as U.S. Attorney General under three presidents and as Governor of Kentucky from 1848 to 1850. He is probably most well remembered as the author of the “Crittenden Compromise” which attempted to prevent the Civil War. Two of his sons fought against each other in the Battle of Shiloh.

20. Wallace-Byrne House: Ca. 1811. Originally a two-room log house built by Judge William Wallace, this building once served as a tavern and stagecoach inn. It was reconstructed in 1822 and again remodeled in the late 1800s. In 1822, the property was acquired by Byrne, whose son was in a line of four Doctors Walter Byrne who practiced medicine in Russellville for close to 150 years.

21. O’Bannon House: The original section of this house was built Ca. 1811 by Presley N. O’Bannon. O’Bannon launched a political career based on his heroism in the Barbary Wars during which he planted the American flag at Tripoli, the first time the flag was planted on foreign soil. The house was later owned by Richard Bibb Jr., who extensively remodeled it, adding the front section.

22. Courts Hall: Ca. 1890. This Victorian house was built by banker C. Winn Courts. It has five floors and was extensively remodeled in the 1970s by noted journalist Albert P. “AP” Smith.

23. Morehead House: Ca. 1820. This was the home of Armistead Morehead, Russellville’s first Postmaster and the father of James T. Morehead who served as Kentucky’s Lieutenant Governor and became governor in 1834 upon the death of John Breathitt. There is a narrow crawl space tunnel under the street to the Edwards-Atkinson House, believed to be associated with the Underground Railroad.

24. Edwards-Atkinson House: Ca. 1820. Originally built by Major Sherwood Atkinson, the outside circular staircase on the north side, the front porch and Greek Revival columns were added Ca. 1920.

25. The Methodist Temple: Ca. 1854. The church was organized in 1808, the oldest congregation in Russellville. The building was constructed on this site in 1854 and extensively remodeled in 1917 when the columns and stained glass windows were added.

26. Browder-Waggenger House: Ca. 1850. Built in three stages featuring styles of each period, the interior of this house features of a magnificent stairway. At one time, Bethel College faculty lived here.

27. Curd-Coffman House: Ca. 1814. Built by Richard Curd, this house has been owned by the Coffman family since 1865. The Rev. Edward Coffman Sr., a noted local historian and author, wrote “The Story of Logan County” in 1962 and his son, Rev. Edward Coffman Jr., updated and re-titled it “Through My Father’s Eyes” in 2002.

28. Episcopal Parish House/ McCullough Hall: Ca. 1885. This fine example of shingle style architecture was built by J. Cap Morton.

29. Trinity Episcopal Church: Ca. 1891. Organized in 1836, it is one of the oldest churches in the Diocese of Kentucky. It is a modest but good example of a post-Civil War Gothic Revival Episcopal Church. The original cast iron fence is one of the many that were once numerous around town.

30. First Baptist Church: Ca. 1899. The Victorian structure replaced an earlier Baptist Church built in 1816. The steeple was added in 2007.

31. Samuel Caldwell House: Ca. 1820. One of several buildings constructed by Col. Thomas Grubbs in early Russellville, this was the home of Gen. Samuel Caldwell who was the town’s first merchant and held positions among the earliest governmental leadership. The Grubbs home was two blocks east of this site.

32. Andrews House: Ca. 1810. The wooden exterior of this house, which once sold for $125 and a mare, resembles cut stone in the style of Mount Vernon.

33. Southern Bank of Kentucky: Ca. 1857. Built by George Norton to serve as both a bank and residence, the bank was robbed by the Jesse James Gang in 1868 in their first documented robbery. During the Civil War, over one million dollars in currency was removed from the vault and hidden to avoid confiscation by soldiers.

34. Jones House: Ca. 1810. Home of Walter Jones, Russellville’s first doctor, and later owned by the Norton family who built the Southern Bank next door.

35. Governor Breathitt House: Ca. 1820. This was the home of John Breathitt, governor of Kentucky from 1832-1834. Governor Breathitt is buried in Logan County and a monument to him was erected by the State of Kentucky in Maple Grove Cemetery. The two-story brick structure to the west was also built by Governor Breathitt as a one-story office. The second floor was added by Carter Harrison in the last quarter of the nineteenth century.

36. The Opera House: Ca. 1903. This building was constructed to accommodate traveling shows and operas. The original entrance was in the center of the building with a wide staircase to the second floor which housed a stage, boxes, balcony and dressing rooms. It was later converted to a movie house and a businesses occupied the first floor.

ALL ROADS LEAD TO LOGAN COUNTY

LOGAN ECONOMIC ALLIANCE FOR DEVELOPMENT

Great things are happening at the Logan Economic Alliance for Development (LEAD) in Logan County, Ky. We are centrally located within a day's drive to over 70% of the nation's population and that's why we say, "All Roads LEAD to Logan County." We are approximately 30 miles from four interstates, I-24, I-65, I-165, and I-169.

Logan County has four incorporated cities: Russellville, Auburn, Adairville and Lewisburg, and many great communities.

We have two signature industrial parks owned by the Logan County Industrial Development Authority. The West Industrial Park (WIP) is comprised of 167 developable acres and zoned for heavy industrial use with all utilities and adjacent to the RJ Corman Railway. The West Industrial Park also has four-lane access at both entrances.

The Shelton Lane Industrial Park (SLIP) has 75 developable acres with an 80,000 square foot build ready site expandable to 100,000 square feet. This site is zoned heavy industrial and has all utilities and rail capability if needed. The Shelton Lane Industrial Park is approximately 1,000 feet from a 4-lane state highway and near Logan Aluminum.

Logan County also has a vibrant workforce. Our citizens are hard working and loyal. This is one of the reasons we have had continued population growth since the 1960's, an exceptional quality of life, and a low cost of living compared to other communities in our region.

Logan County has all the amenities any industry would need. The Tennessee Valley Authority, Russellville Electric Plant Board, Pennyryle Electric Cooperative, Warren Rural Electric Cooperative, Logan-Todd Regional Water Commission, municipal wastewater treatment facilities, Atmos Energy Gas, RJ Corman Railroad Company, CSX, LTC Connect, AT&T, and our U.S. and interstate highways all go together to provide the support and services that industry must have to be successful.

We also offer excellent education opportunities. The Logan County Career and Technical Center is a valuable asset for Russellville, Logan, and Todd Counties. Their graduates are in demand with a waiting list from area companies. They provide training and technical skills, and soft skills that are increasingly important for today's workforce. In addition, the South-Central Kentucky Community and Technical College provides technical and community college education desired by industries. Good jobs require advanced training.

Everything you need is right here in Logan County. If you are looking to start, expand or relocate an industry or business, Logan County is the place for you, because as you know, All Roads LEAD to Logan County!

Russellville Walking Tour

In 2017, the Logan County Public Library celebrated its 50th anniversary. Many things have changed over the years—the card catalog cabinets and the due date cards in the front pocket of the book have been replaced by computers and specialized software. The large section of reference works where research was conducted has largely been replaced by subscriptions to online resources that provide needed information.

However, the most important thing has remained exactly the same—trained, professional staff who are there to provide for the informational and entertainment needs of their community. The methods may differ, but the purpose is a constant.

The main library, located at 225 Armory Drive in Russellville, is open 62 hours each week, seven days a week. The branch libraries, located in Adairville and Auburn, are open less total hours, but provide similar services—material checkout (books, audiobooks, DVDs, etc.); computer use and wireless access; weekly story times; copy, fax, and notary service; and much, much more.

Programming has always been a staple for the library. Over the years the library has expanded to offer hundreds of programs for children, teens, and adults. Several programs are now hosted at our branches and community centers across the county. To give patrons and the community an extraordinary experience, the library will occasionally bring in performers and exhibits to enhance the time spent at the library. Through programming we hope to encourage patrons to become lifelong library users and supporters.

Often groups in the community need a place to meet, whether it's the regular monthly meeting of a history club, a business needing training space, or former classmates meeting up to plan a class reunion. The library offers two meeting spaces—free of charge—to qualifying groups in the county. These meeting rooms, along with the comfortable seating areas in the main library, are just one more way the library serves as a community hub, allowing citizens to gather and exchange ideas and information.

While the library may look very different from the one that first opened its doors in 1967, its purpose is, as always, to be a valuable resource for Logan County and beyond. For more information, please visit www.loganlibrary.org or stop by a library location.

Lake Mahone

Lake Malone is a 788-acre reservoir lake created in 1961. It is named for Mr. and Mrs. Wallace C. Malone, who donated land for the lake. Logan, Todd and Muhlenberg counties all border the lake with Logan having approximately 330 property owners on the lake. Lake Malone captures Kentucky's beauty in a small package. The lake is enclosed by dramatic 50-foot sandstone bluffs rising above the water's edge and surrounded by hardwood forests. The park has a campground, marina, beach and hiking trail.

Camping: Over 100 primitive sites are available for tent camping. 25 campsites are equipped with electric and water hookups to accommodate recreational vehicles. A central service building offers showers, rest rooms and a laundry. Campsites have grills and picnic tables. Reservations can be made online or at 1-888-4KY-PARK.

Fishing: Variety of species such as channel catfish, large-mouth bass, crappie, bluegill and readear sunfish. A boat ramp is available at the lake.

Beach: Sand beach with boathouse, showers, restrooms and a vending area.

Hiking trails: Easy-rated 1.5-mile hiking trail provides views of many rock walls, once used as shelters by pre-historic Native Americans.

Picnicking and playground: Two picnic shelters with restrooms, picnic tables, grills and an adjacent playground.

The Big Twigs family: Three 14-foot sculptures can be viewed by taking a short hike around beautiful Lake Malone State Park. Maps are posted.

THINGS TO DO

Rolling Hills Golf Course

Visit Rolling Hills Golf Course, Logan County's own 18-hole course, complete with a driving range and pro shop. Located conveniently in Russellville, at 1600 Pine Drive, this course offers beautiful greens and landscapes to enjoy your next round of golf.

Historic Walking Tour

Being known for its many historic features, the Logan County Historic Walking Tour is a self-guided tour of the historic features and buildings of downtown Russellville. Pick up a copy of the tour at Logan County Tourism or the Logan County Chamber of Commerce.

Carriage House Vineyards

From vine to bottle, Carriage House Vineyards offers a one-of-a-kind experience that is equally entertaining and tasty. Located at 259 Longview Lane in Auburn the Vineyard offers many events throughout the year and live music for a cozy night out.

Logan County Farmers Market

Tucked just behind the Logan County Ag Extension Office at 255 John Paul Road in Russellville, the Logan County Farmers Market is a one-stop-shop for all of your local produce needs. The market offers a wide variety of fruits, vegetables, baked goods, and crafts. The Farmers Market runs from June until October.

Lake Malone State Park

Lake Malone captures Kentucky's beauty with its dramatic 50-ft sandstone bluffs and surrounding hardwood forests. With camping, fishing, hiking, and beach and picnic areas, Lake Malone offers fun for the whole family.

Red River

Red River is where many locals have spent summers kayaking, canoeing, fishing, and camping in Logan County. With its beautiful, slow, pace, the Red River offers a one-of-a-kind relaxation experience.

Flower Farms

Steenbergen Sunflower Farm located at 4013 Stevenson Mill Road in Russellville and Old Roots Farm located at 585 Marshall Road in Russellville provide beautiful floral farms throughout the Spring, Summer, and Fall in Logan County. During the summer months the farms also host festivals and concerts for the whole family.

Baker Nature Trails

Located conveniently in Russellville, the 1.9 mile loop offers a beautiful trail to spend the afternoon outdoors. The plant community is diverse and over 375 species of plants have been documented along the trail. The grassland wildflowers are showy throughout the summer months and the site also includes several limestone glades and forest areas.

B.H. James Distillers

A new expression of American Whiskey crafted by B.H. James Distillers at 220 W. Gallatin, St. Adairville, Ky. Each small batch is comprised of less than 10 hand selected barrels of premium American whiskey. With patience and skill, the prized contents of these barrels are married to create a unique and enjoyable expression of American whiskey. Our one-of-a-kind batches are released in limited quantities 3 to 4 times a year.

Red River Meeting House & Cemetery

The Red River Meeting House, 3008 Schochoh Rd, Adairville, Ky. was the site of the first religious camp meeting in the United States. Held June 13-17, 1800, it marked the start of the Second Great Awakening, a major religious movement in the United States in the first part of the nineteenth century. There is also a cemetery on the property.
